MIT4LS Startup Breeding

MIT4LS - the house of life science startups

MIT4LS is used to showing special attention for startups: more than 660 startups have been participating in the networking sessions over six editions. Since 2016, specific initiatives to train and support international startups and business ideas, have become a key component of MIT4LS. Over the past editions, more than 330 applications were collected, 110 startups attended the training and final sessions, more than 140 investors and corporate representatives were involved in the final pitch presentations event.

The objective is to provide startups with expertise, tools and connections in order to boost and fully exploit their business potential, thanks to the support of a relevant network of startup mentors, coaches, experts and several investors.

At the end of the training, the selected startups pitch their proposals in a specific session during the MIT4LS days in front of potential corporate partners and international investors.

MIT4LS SUB2022 is the startup initiative supported by an extensive network of organisations and dedicated to life science innovative startups and business proposals working in medical device, pharmaceutical, digital health sectors and related activities.

The Selection Committee selected 15 business proposals as SUB2022 finalists that went through a tailored entrepreneurial journey, diving into coaching sessions with life science experts and mentors who helped them in refining their business approach and the communication of their innovative value.

The startup journey will end with a pitch to potential corporate partners and international investors at the final event, the Atlantis Pitching Arena 2022, on the 19th of October 2022 at Le Villages by Crédit Agricole in Milan.
